

MH415 - BSc Economics (Integrated with MSc Economics)

FAQ:

16- What is the difference between studying Business and Economics?

While Economics majors and Business majors are desired by the same type of employers in private sector, such as banking and finance, the disciplines are quite different in their approach. Economics is a social science which uses technical tools for in depth analysis. Hence, they are also much desired in public sector as well as in private sector.

If you are a mathsy person with a passion to tackle pressing economic, socio-economic and socio-political challenges such as poverty, financial instability, gender and racial inequality and climate change, I recommend Economics.
