

MH415 - BSc Economics (Integrated with MSc Economics)

FAQ:

7- *What does BSc Economics 'integrated with MSc Economics' mean?

The default path is going from BSc Economics to MSc Economics -though you can graduate with the BSc degree and not continue to MSc if you so desire. You will automatically progress to MSc Economics, as long as you reach a minimum standard (55/100 from BSc Economics).

As a BSc student, from day one you will be treated as an MSc student in training. You will have an academic mentor so that you can flourish based on your own individual curiosity and strengths. Each year there is an independent research component in the programme. In the third year, there is a full-year senior thesis. You will be given guidance for the BSc thesis jointly with the MSc students on research and presentation skills. This allows a smooth progression not only in technical skills but also in research culture.
