

Dean of Teaching & Learning Seminar Series 2022-23

Thursday May 4th

Room 1.37, Iontas Building, 11am to 2pm.

‘Teaching Migration in the Humanities and Beyond’

The Dean of Teaching and Learning Seminar Series is delighted to welcome Professor Parvati Nair to Maynooth University to host this masterclass in conjunction with Dr Rita Sakr, Department of English, that is aimed at supporting and developing best practice and innovative methods in teaching and learning in the broad area of migration.

Professor Parvati Nair, former Head of the School of Languages, Linguistics and Film, Queen Mary University of London; Professor of Hispanic, Cultural and Migration Studies; and previously Founding Director of the United Nations University Institute on Globalization, Culture and Mobility, will deliver this masterclass that aims at setting a very solid groundwork for further teaching and learning development opportunities for the significant number of FACSP, and more broadly MU, colleagues involved in teaching in the broad area of migration; for curricular revision of relevant programmes and the exploration of further collaborative possibilities (including interdisciplinary undergraduate pathways and doctoral programmes in this area); and for embedding state-of-the-art methods with respect to integrating interdisciplinary research-led teaching with experiential learning and public engagement in the field of migration.

Register here to attend.

Lunch will be provided.

Please contact Dr Rita Sakr for further details - rita.sakr@mu.ie.
