SPECIAL LECTURE

Professor Armand D'Angour (University of Oxford)

The Rediscovery of Ancient Greek Music

on Friday 22 February 2019 at 3 pm in JH7

followed by a reception at 5 pm in the Iontas Building, 1st Floor

In 2013 Armand D'Angour embarked on a project to rediscover the sounds of music in ancient Greece, working from documents and with collaborators in different disciplines. The project has proved unexpectedly fruitful, and led to a breakthrough in our understanding of ancient music.

Armand D'Angour is a British classical scholar and classical musician, Associate Professor of Classics at Oxford University and Fellow and Tutor in Classics at Jesus College, Oxford.
