

Day 250 of #SingaceHungerStrike

Photo courtesy of Mohammed CJ

Dear Rowena,

Tomorrow marks day 250 of Dr. Abdul Jalil Al-Singace's hunger strike in protest of torture and the ill treatment of prisoners at Bahrain's Jau Prison, where he is currently serving a life sentence on charges related to his peaceful activism.

Scholars at Risk is gravely concerned over reports that Dr. Al-Singace, a professor of mechanical engineering and a human rights activist, is suffering severe health complications, including respiratory and musculoskeletal issues and sickle cell disease, and is in urgent need of medical attention.

Many of you have taken action by sending greeting cards to Dr. Al-Singace and signing SAR's letter of appeal. To mark day 250, SAR is reissuing our call for letters respectfully urging the authorities to reconsider any convictions related to Dr. Al-Singace's peaceful exercise of free speech and association and to ensure his well-being and access to medical attention while in custody, in accordance with international human rights standards.

Take action with SAR by signing a letter of appeal on

Take action
now

Amplify your voice by sharing this with your networks:

Help release wrongfully imprisoned scholar Dr. Al-Singace, now on day 250 of

#SingaceHungerStrike: ow.ly/V2Cyk

behalf of Dr. Al-Singace and sharing this message with your networks.

Connect with Us

Scholars at Risk
c/o New York University
194 Mercer Street, 4th Floor
New York, NY 10012 USA

Tel: 212-998-2179

Fax: 212-995-4402

scholarsatrisk@nyu.edu

www.scholarsatrisk.org

UNSUBSCRIBE