

The Department of Economics at Maynooth University is delighted to participate in the PDST Young Economist of the Year Special Interest Award 2021. We aim to support emerging young economists who will influence future economic policy in Ireland and in the EU to help foster sustainable development.

This year, we would like young scholars to evaluate the impact of Covid-19 on economic inequality in Ireland and its likely long-term consequences.

The project is expected to be of high academic standard with original, reflective, and soundly argued analysis. A strong analysis will be supported with statistical data presented well with charts and graphs when relevant.

Submissions can be individual submission or group submissions -max three people in one group.

There will be a bursary of 500 Euro divided amongst best papers.

Topic: Evaluation of the impact of Covid-19 on economic inequality in Ireland and its likely long-term consequences.

Suggested Length: 1500-3000 words

Deadline: 12 Feb 2021, 6pm

How to submit: To be announced at <https://www.youngeconomist.ie/>
